

Red

- I like being free to do things my own way.
- Where are the new frontiers, I want to explore.
- Life is a wonderful game – let's play. Games are for winning, mountains for climbing.
- Where's the action (or the problem) – I'm there! Variety and excitement are fun and stimulating.
- Give me a challenge – I'll handle it NOW!
- I love the spotlight – watch me perform.
- Freedom is important, don't fence me in.
- Let's find a new and different way to do it.
- Rules that don't make sense should be broken.
- Reds tend to be more concerned about what's happening right now than in the future. Adventurous hobbies, impulsive behavior, if it isn't fun – forget it! Easy to ignore clutter. Generous, sharing, helpful. Waiting is unacceptable. Often easily bored and restless. Reds learn by doing and experiencing – not reading manuals. Naturally competitive, witty, and charming. Defeats are temporary. Exciting, light-hearted and joyful.

Yellow

- I value rules, tradition, and authority. I am useful, productive, a contributor.
- I have a clear idea of what people should do.
- I belong to organizations and contribute to my community.
- I handle details well, and I'm a hard worker.
- I care for others – by upholding the rules. It's important to have structure, laws, controls.
- I anticipate and prepare for the future.
- I appreciate awards and public recognition.
- I provide stability within an organization.
- I demonstrate my love in practical ways.
- Yellows are loyal, dependable, punctual, trustworthy – and they know that everyone else should be too. Structure and order are very important. They establish and maintain institutions. Very reliable – the backbone of a stable social system. Yellows resist change and see hierarchy as essential to society, the company, the family. Any leadership or authority role must be earned. They have strong urges to plan their work and work their plan.

Blue

- Relationships are important to me. I have lots of friends, both human and furry.
- I have integrity, I'm authentic and unique.
- I like helping others become what they can be. I excel at motivating people.
- I embrace emotions – both mine and others! People are far more important than things. I love to help friends solve their problems. I'm caring, intuitive, and a great listener. Empathy and sympathy are both easy for me because I'm very perceptive.
- I enjoy flowers, music, romantic movies, and nature.
- I thrive on recognition and acceptance.
- Blues see the possibilities in others – and in themselves! They are highly creative and constantly growing. Uniqueness is important, yet they can shift identities to fit the situation. Life is a search for meaning. Warmth and compassion flow easily and with sincerity. Devoted friend, they love to talk, share, and help. Blues are imaginative, genuine, and have lots of sensitivity to the thought and feelings of others.

Green

- Searching, learning, and understanding are fun. I love puzzles, problems, and finding solutions.
- I like to work independently. I consider my computer my loyal friend.
- Intelligence, justice, and fairness are important. I want to be correct – to do things right.
- I enjoy research and reading manuals.
- I love to create a new idea. Once I've found the solution, others can put it into action.
- My calm exterior may hide my inner turmoil.
- Being competent is absolutely essential. I want my brain to handle my emotions.
- Greens want to know all there is to know about everything. They like to analyze, study, invent, investigate, and explore. Non-conforming and independent, they appear calm, cool and collected most of the time. The worst situation for a Green would be to would be to appear stupid. If there's a time to read (outside of "important" books and journals), mysteries or science fiction will be a logical choice. They love abstractions and "solvable" puzzles.
